HARTFORD POST SOLD. John Addison Porter Finally Gets Bid of

His Unprofitable Newspaper. HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 7 .- The Hartford Post, a 2-vent evening Republican paper, which was owned by John Addison Porter, secretary to President McKinley for several years has passed into the hands of E. L. and H. D. Clark of New Haven, who have bought a controlling interest in the stock. The change was announced a few days ago. The Clarks have not before been interested in the newspaper business, but are well known as dealers in masons' supplies at 051 Grand avenue, New Haven. J. A. Spalding acted for them in the recent negotiations with Charles H. Webb, also of the Elm City, who represented the interests of Mr. Porter and his mother. The new owners have turned over the genal management of the corporation's affairs to Mr. Spalling, who thereby resumes the place which he held for many years. It was about seven years ago that John Addison Porter made his first investment in the Post and became half owner on the payment of $25,000, the capital stock being increased that amount to admit of his entrance. Mr. Porter was not quite satisfied with the arrangement, so he bought out the other holders and paid $40,000 additional for the privilege. He immediately sesumed the entire management of affairs, but in the business and editorial offices. The paper was used to further his political desires, without success, and his paper was losing money warly.

without success, and his paper was resing money yearly.

The combined Porter families were rich, however, and John Addison was getting experience. He got a good place at Washington, too, as secretary to the President, on the strength of the vigorous campaign the Post had waged for McKinley's commination, so Mr Porter closed his handsome new residence and made a contract with George L. Fielder, at one time with the New York Post, to assume charge of his paper. The latter made a favorable impression on his entrance, evinced a desire to enter the society of the nutmeg 400, and the leading clubs and played

Mr. Flelder spent money and boomed the bost. Early this winter, knowing that Mr. Forter was willing to sell out, he endeavored to get sufficient backing to buy the paper.

About this time Mr. Jackson of the New Haren Register, a young man who had been very successful in a business way in newspaper circles in his own town, also put in a bid. Mr. Porter himself did not care who the purchaser might he, so long as he received the cash. Mr. Helder claimed an option, but as his money was not forthcoming the Jackson offer appeared the most desirable, and a meeting was called in this city. Mr. Porter resigned a director, and Mr. Jackson was elected, one have being transferred to him for that purpose. Mr. Webn, the representative of the Porters interests, was also present, and the deal was shout to be consummated when Mr. Fielder, knowing that he would be left in the cold on account of the change, sprang his little surprise. He submitted a report of the financial condition of the paper, which showed that $18,900 had been dropped in 1897 and $3,900 mays in the first ten months of 1808. The figures startled Mr. Jackson of New Haven. He skeld to see the report. It was given him. He put it in his pocket, left the office, and has not yet returned.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 7 .- A bench warrant was issued to-day by Judge Albright for the accest of Jack Ryan, the so-called green goods king, who gained his liberty from jail by giving $ -(0) bail, which was taken by "another Alderman," who was not concerned in the original commitment. A true bill was found by the Grand Jury, and, as Ryan was not forthcoming, steps were taken to bring him here from sey City or New York, wherever he may be and It is not likely, however, that Ryan will

NOTES OF LEGAL EFENTS.

Daniel J. Kenefick, who was appointed by Gov. Black to succeed the late Hamilton Ward as one of the Justices of the Supreme Court in the Eighth Judicial district, is the youngest Supreme Court Justice in the State, being only 35 years of age. He was born in Buffalo in 1939, was educated at the public sensols in that city, and has always resided there. He studied law in the office of Richard R. Crowley, formerly member of Congress and United States Attorney for the Northern district of New York, and was admitted to the bar in the autumn of 1884. In the following year he became a clerk in the Law Department of the city of Buffalo, in 1887 Second Assistant District Attorney of Eric county, in 1803 First Assistant, and in 1804 District Attorney by appointment from Gov. Flower, moon the resignation of that office by George T. Quinby. Mr. Kenefick was elected to the same office in 1804 and again in 1807. The Bugaio Express describes him as an able lawver, with a wide experience in important cases, who has always proved himself to be an efficient official, and adds that "he is unquestionably the strongest man in Erie county with the coters." The Eighth Judicial dis-trict is strongly Republican, and the probability is that Judge Kenefick will be nominated by the Republican convention in the fall to suc-

Judicial gown+ have been assumed in this city by the trial Justices of the Supreme Court and even by the Judges of the Court of Special Sessions. The Court of Appeals at Albany adopted this costume ten or twelve years ago. and the fashion extended to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in this department when that recond came into existence at the beginning of 1808. At a meeting of all the Appellate Dicision Justices in 1895, shortly before the organization of the court under the new Constitution, an effort was made to procure the adoption of a resolution in favor of wearing the gown in all four departments, but a majority of the Judges voted against the proposition. Outside of this department the sentiment of the bar seems to be opposed to the change or indifferent in the matter. The Bean Slyn Citizen of Thursday announced that the Supreme Court Justices in that berough have required the court attendants at the trial and special terms to wear uniforms hereafter. There is a good reason for this requirement in the fact that without some distinctive garb the official character of the court officers is not readily manifest to persons who are present in court, among whom it is their duty to preserve order.

Immediately following the apology of the editof of the Boston Traceler for the contempt of court for which he was imprisoned a few days in the Dedham jail, came the decision of the full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in the case of two newspaper publishing corporations at Worcester, each of which had been fined $100 by the Superior (trial) Court, for printing articles designed to affect the result of a pending trial. The decision clearly asserts the power of a court to punish in a summary manner an attempt by publications in a newspaper to influence a Judge or jury in the determination of a case pending before them. It also declares that this power extends to corporations as well as individuals. The difficulty in this class of cases is to ascertalu justly and fairly whether a particular publication really is intended and calculated to influence the administration of justice in a pending trial.

The Supreme Court of the United States has affirmed the decisions of the Federal Courts in this State to the effect that the natural gas brought from Canada in pipes under the Niagara River to the city of Buffalo is free of duty under the McKinley act. On the free list in that statute were crude bitumen and 'minerals, crude or not advanced in value or condition by refining or grinding or other process of manufacture." In a suit by the United States against the Buffalo Natural Gas Fuel Company, Judge Alfred C. Coxe of the Northern district of New York decided that the Canadian natural gas brought into this country as stated was exempt from duty as being a erude mineral. In the United States Circuit Court of Appeals Judges Lacombe and Shipman were of the same opinion; but Judge Wallace, while he agreed that natural gas was duty free, thought that it was to be classed not as a mineral, but as crude bitumen. This is the view which has been adopted by the Supreme Court at Washington. "In scientific classification." said Judge Wallace. "natural gas may be considered a mineral, but in the tariff act the term minerals is to be read in its common acceptation in the absence of a different commercial signification, and does not, I think, include a gas, but means something which in ordinary parlance is mined." On the other hand, as he pointed out, bitumen is a generic term comprising gaseous as well as solid substances.

By an act of Congress, approved Jan. 15. 1897, it is provided that in all cases where the accused is found guilty o the crime of murder or of rape under the Revised Statutes of the United States the jury may qualify their verdict by adding to it the words "without capital punishment," and in that event "the person convicted shall be sentenced to impris-onment at hard labor for life." The Criminal Court in the District of Columbia interpreted this statute to mean that the accused could not be relieved from the death penalty by the qualified verdict which it permits, unless the proof showed that the crime was mitigated by extenuating circumstances. This view the Supreme Court of the United States has pronounced erroneous. There is nothing in the language of the law itself to indicate that evidence in palliation of the offence is necessary to authorize a jury to render the qualified verdict, the purpose of the enactment apparently being to leave to the jury the absolute control of the sentence, as between death and life imprisonment.

The last official act of general public interest on the part of Mr. Justice Clearwater was the rendition of a judgment in favor of the Board of Supervisors of Queens county fixing the amount of the debt of that county which should equitably and properly be assumed by the city of New York as a result of consolidation. The Greater New York charter provided that if the Mayor and Municipal Assembly were not able to agree with the Queens county Supervisors as to the amount within six months, the Supreme Court in the Third Judicial District should have power to determine the portion of the Queens county debt to be assumed by the city, "and to enforce such award, decision and determination as shall be made in the premises, in a suit is equity to be brought by and in the name of either of said parties." Such a suit was instituted in the Albany district, and former Justice Charles F. Brown of Newburg was appointed referee to take, testimony and report to the Court with his opinion. Upon the coming in of his report, Judge Clearwater decided that the city of New York, in addition to the debt of Queens county which it has already voluntarily assumed, is liable to the extent of nearly two hundred thousand dollars.

A conviction of one of the so-called Peculiar People, who was tried for manslaughter before Mr. Justice Wills, has recently been sustained by the English Court for Crown Cases Reserved. The victim was a young child of the prisoner, and the death of the child was found by the lury to have been caused by the father a redusal to provide medical treatment for it. The defendant sought to justify his conduct by reference to the furteenth and fifteenth verses of the fifth chapter of the Elekte of James, where it is said. 'Is any sick among your Let him call for the elders of the church: and tet them pray over him, amounting him with oil in the name of the Lord: And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the interpretable of the foundable raise him up; and if he have committed sins: they shall be forgiven him. The jury, nevertheless, found the father guilty under the act of Parliament which makes it a criminal offence for any parent wilfully to neglect to provide adequate food, clothing, medical aid or ledging for his child in his custody, being under the age of 14 years, whereby the health of the child shall have been or shall be likely to be seriously have C. The Appellate Court held that it was no defence that the father believed that the Bible forbade him to provide medical assistance for his sick child. People, who was tried for manslaughter before

THE POOR LOSE $50,000.

Clause of James M. Waterbury's Will Declared Invalid. James M. Waterbury, who made a fortune out of the ropewalk in Williamsburg called by his name, and who died in 1873, made this pro-vision in his will which was admitted to probate shortly after his death: "It is my will, and I hereby direct, that the sum of $50,000 be set apart from my estate as sum of $50,000 be set apart from my estate as a respectual fund to be invested according to the best judgment of my executors bereinafter named, and the net annual income arising therefrom to be distributed among the poor of the Eastern district of the city of Brooklyn at such times and in such manner as shall afford the greatest amount of relief in the judgment of my said executors.

For several years the income from the $50,000 was distributed among the Eastern District Hospital, the Eastern District Hospital, the Eastern District Hospital, the Eastern District Industrial Home and other Williamsburg charities. On the death of Norman Andrews, one of the executors, recently, the other executor stopped the payments on the ground that the terms of the bequest were too uncertain and vague. He could not, he said, promerly determine who "the near of the Eastern District" really were. An action was finally brought in the Sunreme Court for the construction of the will, and Justice Gaynor, before whom it was tried, decided yesterday, that the clause in the Will is invalid. The $50,000 will therefore revert to the other beneficiaries.
